Good Times

Prosperity is the stuff out of which good times are made, and prosperity comes with full employment, good wages, abundant crops and fair profits.

And prosperity also has to do with our state of mind. There can be no real prosperity without confidence and faith—confidence in the purchasing power of our money and faith in the stability of our future.

Prosperity is not "easy money," it is not made out of the stuff of which booms are formed. Booms have to do with financial inflation, and booms sometimes bust.

Our country has been enjoying one of its most extended booms. Never before have we "had it so good," for so long. When the Federal Government spends freely with lavish hand, when it refuses to balance its budget, goes deeper and deeper in debt, we have what is known as flush times. And as we finger the pages of financial history, we all know that there always comes a day of reckoning, the day when the piper must be paid.

To those of us who seek real security, the financial security that comes as we provide for our own future, these are good times in which to work a little harder, save a little more, so we may not be caught short should the going get rough.

Through all kinds of financial weather, through thick and thin, through inflation and deflation, through good times and bad times, it's smart to save a little more than one spends. It's wise to keep one's credit unimpaired, borrow only when necessary, borrow sparingly and pay promptly.

Misfortunes do come over which we have no control, but as a usual thing prosperity smiles upon those who strive and save for it. There are no substitutes for industry and frugality. Faith and works are the stuff out of which good times are made. A sound prosperity is seldom accidental.

P-T. A. Congress To Hold Convention

The Mississippi Congress of Parents and Teachers will open its annual convention at Hotel Buena Vista, Biloxi, Mississippi, April 7-10, 10:00 A. M. with Mrs. E. L. Hendrick, Jackson, president, presiding over the opening session. The convention will be held at the hotel from April 7-10, 10:00 A. M. to April 8, 4:00 P. M.

The convention theme is "Children Can't Wait" and the entire program points up the national action program for better homes, better schools, and better communities.

Three national personalities, Dr. H. R. Douglas, Director, College of Education, University of Colorado, Mrs. H. H. Hargreaves, vice-president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers from Region VII, Portland, Oregon, and Dr. Lloyd V. Funchess, Music Chairman, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, State Department of Education of Louisiana, will interpret the facets of the theme in address and conferences.

DR. HARL R. DOUGLASS Teachers and lay leaders will welcome the chance to hear Dr. Harl R. Douglas of International fame for his work as sponsor and author of Education for Life Adjustment. He is presently Director of the College of Education, University of Colorado. He has taught at the University of Oregon, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, and North Carolina, and he has been consultant to more than a score of city and county curriculum and guidance groups in a number of states. He has been a contributing editor to the Journal of Experimental Education since 1932. Numerous other educational periodicals publish his articles on curriculum, teaching procedures, in-service education, and the coming of Dr. Douglas to the State PTA Convention to be held at the Buena Vista in Biloxi, April 7-8, Mrs. A. L. Hendrick says, "Really, we feel that we have secured a speaker who has answers to many of our pressing questions in educational matters. I hope every teacher and parent who has the interest of Mississippi's children at heart will make a real effort to hear and talk with him at the PTA Convention."

Mrs. H. H. Hargreaves, vice-president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers from Region VII, served as president of the Oregon Congress from 1947-50. Earlier she was president, vice-president, auditor, and bulletin editor for the Portland, Oregon Council of Parent-Teacher Association. She has also been president, vice-president, and secretary of a local unit and now holds a membership in the Benson High School P-T. A. in Portland.

Deeply interested in social welfare work, Mrs. Hargreaves has served on the executive committee for the Oregon region, National Conference of Christians and Jews; on the Governor's Committee for Children and Youth; and as secretary of the Oregon Branch of the Christian Rural Overseas Program. For two years she served on the adoption committee of the Portland Council of Social Agencies and has been active on the day care committee of that organization as well as on the executive committee of its family relations division. Mrs. Hargreaves is also a member of the executive Board of the Portland Rehabilitation Center. She keeps in close touch with international affairs through membership on the advisory board of the Northwest Institute of International Relations.

Mrs. Hargreaves was graduated from the University of Oregon and was a teacher before her marriage. She is now active in real estate business. Her husband is vice-principal of a large technical high school, and her son expects to enter the ministry.

Dr. Lloyd V. Funchess, Music Chairman, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, is recognized in music circles as an outstanding teacher and supervisor. A number of his articles have appeared in professional magazines and he is composer of several well received pieces. Dr. Funchess is now State Supervisor of Music, State Department of Education, Baton Rouge, La. He will participate in the Wednesday evening program, entitled, "The P. T. A. A Force in the Community."

STATE PARTICIPANTS No less exciting than the National names appearing on the program is the list of Mississippi participants. The home-state teachers and lay leaders who are to appear on panels and symposiums, all informed and fervent in their dedication to children and youth, will stimulate each other and their hearers so effectively that an essence-of-conference will result. Superintendents and principals are urged to take the initiative in making arrangements for one or more members of every faculty in the state to be present for the whole convention.

The convention program committee includes Mrs. L. H. Alston of Hattiesburg, immediate past state president, chairman; Mrs. D. N. Redhead, Centerville; Mrs.

Oregon Council of Parent-Teacher Association

The National Fire Protection Association, a non-profit, technical organization, points out that with the exception of the winter months, spring brings the highest fire loss in rural areas. To reduce this loss State Agricultural Extension Service join with the U. S. Department of Agriculture and NFPA in urging a vigorous cleanup of hazards on the farm this Spring. Here are some important measures for every farmer to take in cleaning up his farm:

1. Farm machinery and tools, especially equipment that was left out in the open during the winter, should be cleaned, repaired, oiled and sharpened.

2. Clean the barn thoroughly, eliminating such usual fire hazards as trash and debris piled in the corners; oilpans on the rafters and around fuse boxes. Replace worn out electrical cords and damaged parts. Make sure lightning rods are properly connected and fire extinguishers are fully charged and ready for use.

3. Check the roofs of the barn, farm home and other buildings. If leaks have developed, select a weather-tight, fire resistant material that can be economically placed over the worn-out roof.

4. Clean the chimney and repair the heating plant of the home. Sparks falling on flammable roofs are one of the major causes of farm fires. A simple chimney "sweep" can be made by wrapping an old sack around a few bricks, tying a rope around it, and pulling it up and down in the chimney.

5. Repair broken flooring and sidewalks of the barn, brooder houses, storage bins, and other buildings. Serious injury may result from such neglected repairs. Weather-tight buildings are essential to provide storage for crops and shelter for farm stock.

6. Clean away dead leaves piled up along the fence or in the far corners. Dried out by the sun and spring winds, such debris can easily be lighted by backfire from power machinery.

All Right... Let's TEST CATHOLIC LOYALTY!

The majority of non-Catholics do not question the patriotism of their Catholic fellow-citizens.

They have seen too many Catholic sons die beside their own on countless battlefields. They have stood too often with Catholics in defense of common ideals and a common heritage.

Yet the ugly voice of bigotry is heard again - warning that Catholics "owe allegiance to a foreign potentate".... that "Popery" is a "menace to democracy".... even that Catholicism is as "totalitarian as Communism."

Informed non-Catholics will scorn these unworthy accusations. But in the interest of truth and good will among people of all faiths, this miserable skeleton of intolerance should be exposed for the benefit of the many who otherwise may become unwitting victims of false and misleading books, tracts and other anti-Catholic propaganda.

One critic in the United States suggests that the Catholic Church is "undemocratic" because it opposes such things as birth control, divorce and questionable reading matter. By this unreasonable standard, a religious denomination, which opposes alcoholic drink could also be called "undemocratic" because it holds principles contrary to the law of the land. Catholics, certainly, make no such criticism.

Catholics are called "undemocratic" because they have their own schools. By the same reasoning, all other denominations with church-sponsored schools and colleges could be likewise condemned, despite the fact that religious schools preceded tax-supported schools in the United States and Canada, and that most of our private colleges and universities were founded by religious bodies.

The Catholic Church is called an "alien" religion because the Vatican is located in Italy.

All of the major religious faiths of the United States and Canada had their origin in foreign lands. And the fact is that the religions professed by these bodies are at this very time the state religions in certain other lands. But does anyone call them "undemocratic?"

For nearly 2,000 years, the Catholic Church has existed under any and all forms of government. Its people comply with the political system of the land they live in... refusing to comply only if a political state should command them to violate God's law. An example is the Catholic resistance to Communism wherever it appears - because Catholicism and Communism are incompatible.

In the interest of harmony and good will... and as a matter of Christian and intellectual honesty... you should learn the truth about Catholics before seeking to judge them. We will be happy to send you free and without obligation an explanatory pamphlet which gives a clear picture of the Catholic Church in its relation to government and the social order. Write today... ask for Pamphlet No. KC-35.

THE ROW OVER BOHLEN

Possibly the most controversial issue in official Washington, the nation's seat of controversies, the past couple of weeks has been President Eisenhower's designation of Charles E. "Chip" Bohlen to be our new Ambassador to Russia. Bohlen's confirmation by the Senate has been a foregone conclusion all the way. But a determined opposition, spearheaded by two figures, who themselves are very controversial, McCarthy of Wisconsin and McCarran of Nevada, has occupied the limelight.

All people familiar with Bohlen's record are in agreement that he is possibly the best qualified man from the standpoint of knowledge of the Kremlin masters of anyone available for that listening post. The only other American with equal or superior knowledge of the Russian philosophy is probably George Kennan, whom the Russians "kicked out" as our ambassador as the result of a speech which Kennan made outside of Russia in which he was highly critical of the masters of the Kremlin and their objectives.

The chief objection that has been raised against Bohlen, aside from some sensational charges by McCarthy and McCarran reflecting on Bohlen's loyalty, is that he is too closely associated with the Truman-Acheson regime. The argument is made that since Bohlen was a part and parcel of the Truman-Acheson philosophy, having served in the State Department as a Russian authority during that regime, he would naturally be inclined to follow the policy of the old Administration. Personally, we are of the opinion that the charges of disloyalty are unfounded and grow out of his previous association with the Truman-Acheson Administration. But we are inclined to the opinion that the new ambassador-designate may be overly influenced by the Truman-Acheson policy of which he was a subordinate part. In fact, in 1946, 1947 and 1948 we personally had a number of conferences with Messrs. Truman, Acheson and Bohlen when we unsuccessfully attempted to obtain Administration support for a resolution which we were sponsoring advocating a firm policy in dealing with Russia. This policy, among other things, called for:

1. Taking the initiative away from Russia and stopping the appeasement policy.

2. Stopping the shipment of war materials to Russia and her satellites.

3. Putting Russia and her satellites on a reciprocal basis, permitting her diplomats and emissaries only the same privileges and immunities in this country that our representatives were permitted in Russia.

4. Stopping the transmission of our technical know-how, patents, et cetera, to Russia.

In these conferences Bohlen, as the authority on Russia in the State Department, always went along with Acheson and the other State Department conferees on the idea that while we might be right, the time for such action was not ripe. Therefore, while we do not question Bohlen's loyalty as a good American, we must confess to misgivings as to his judgment in view of our past experiences.

However, there is one comforting thought. "Chip" Bohlen is a career diplomat. In the last Administration he was, of course, merely a subordinate employee of the State Department. His views, if he remained in his position, must of necessity conform with those of his superior. If this be true, of course, it would also follow that he would be inclined to go along with the views of his new superiors, Eisenhower, and Dulles. Thus, if Eisenhower and Dulles carry through on their announced positive rather than negative policy in dealing with Russia, it may be assumed that Bohlen will be on their team.

At any rate, Bohlen is an exceptionally learned man. He has spent a great deal of time in Russia. He speaks the Russian language fluently and could prove to be a most valuable asset to this country in this, the most sensitive listening post in the world.
